Empower Webinar Data Value: Moving beyond a monetary value October 19th 3pm (GMT+1)

The In the digital age, organizations have become increasingly dependent on data. As part of our digital transformation, it has evolved from being just a mere means of storing information to being a critical asset that can be used to drive innovation, increase profitability, and gain insights. We frequently hear about unlocking the potential of data value, but is the interpretation of data value changing? How do we measure the outcomes of data? How does this impact you or your organisation? It is an opportune time to address these questions with our panel of experts as we delve into moving beyond monetary value and assess the impact on a wider economy and society as a whole.
