Empower Webinar: From Data Policy to Practice: Mind the Gap

21st November

This webinar explored the common gaps between policy creation and practical execution, particularly focusing on: Government-Level Policies: How national governments and agencies can better align policy objectives with the tools and resources needed for effective on-the-ground implementation.

International Coordination: With data being shared across borders, the need for synchronised global frameworks is more urgent than ever. We'll look at the challenges international bodies face in ensuring their policies are both adaptable and enforceable across different jurisdictions.

Bridging National and International Goals: How national interests can align with global regulations, such as the EU's Data Act and the AI Act, to create a unified approach to data governance.

Co-creation Workshop: Open Data and Data Governance in Action

27th November

On November 27th, we had an incredibly informative session with insightful discussions, hands-on activities, and creative solutions focused on open data quality and governance capabilities. This design thinking environment fostered collaboration and innovation, bringing out the best idea for developing a scalable solution—a maturity model—to strengthen open data and governance practices in organizations.
